when seen last right his acty was substitutially as follows:

'I had been on loand the Australia as neual, looking for stownways and parties against whom complaints were lodged. After we reached the bell-busy I had get into the pilot boat. surfdenly I heard some shots, and Miss Helen Wilder rushed to the rall and told me a man was shot. I hoarded the vessel and started down to the lower deck. Everybody section paleon stricken. When I reached the saloon stricken. When I reached his revolver I met Wade. He pointed his revolver at me and called me a number of vile names and said he'd fill me full of lead. I endeavored to calm him by saying that I was merely looking for the man that was shot and that I knew he did it in self defense.

As I was unarmed I saw it was use-less to try to go further. I returned an deck and asked Capt. Houdiette for a weapon. He told me to go to First Officer Lawless, who furnished a rifle. with one load and cocked.

Wish Lawiese I went below. As soon as I saw Wade I called on him to surrender. He answered by pointmg his revolver in our direction and firing. I think he fired two shots, quickly as possible I raised my rifle and let go. I don't know how long it and let go. I don't know how long it took me to fire, but I didn't lose much time. Wade dropped. I thought he was killed and so reported to Capt.

In a few moments Chief Engineer Niemann came up and said that the man was only stunned. We went be-low and found that he had received a scalp wound, the bullet grazing the jeft side of his head. He was froned and taken on board the pilot boat, to-gether with his victim, who had been attended to by Dr. McNuity.
"After Wade had shot Gillespie he

Visit to One of the Seminaries Teacher and Pupils-Confuclus-Singing is Heard.

Down in the heart of the Honolulu Chinatown, right in the middle of a square teeming with life, is a select man who wears great round, glassrimmed spectacles. He is supposed to be very learned. The Chinese declare he is fully versed in all the wisdom of the olden times of the Flowery Kingdom. The school is popular, or at least is well patronized. The pupils number rails arrives the testimony of the a couple of hundred and range in age negro. Sidney, and other witnesses will from half a dozen years to youths and maidens of 16 or 17. The gathering is a picturesque one and to the person familiar only with the white man's methods of instruction, the proceedings are unique and striking.

The books are all from China and are clearly printed and well bound. Each pupil has several text books. The course in the school seems to include reading and writing and singing and fore his eyes as if to shut out some un-pleasant vision. He does not know the charge against him. He does not real-ize that the victim of his passion is to be buried this morning. No informa-tion was given him that when he ap-pears before the magistrate that he the philosophy of Confucius. This latqueer characters. After the symbols are made the little ones are given the names of them and memorize these in sing-song, buzzing tones, all working at once and making a regular drone of a sleepy chorus. The faculty was asked about his lectures. He said that there was nothing original about them, but that he sought to be earnest and impressive in repeating or presenting the teachings of the Great Scholar of the Nation. "It was what is good and right and the best for all that Confucius has handed down," said the instructor, "If the scholars accept what I read to them from the greatest teach-I read to them from the greatest teach er, they will be happy amongst them-serves, will be honest to all others and will be loved and successful."

The scholars sang for a party of vis ltors. This was the blow that almost prostrated the veteran in the ranks of the explorers. The Chinese are la-mentably weak in vocalism, though it is the testimony of the famous Pade rewski that their instrumental music is of a high order. In getting all in readiness for the singing the old pro-fessor had more trouble than a star;pistol shot.

If the advice given in those three words is heeded, good health will follow. City water is not good for many reasons, principally, because it is contaminated with vegetable and putrid matter of all descriptions. A simple analysis shows this to be a fact.

EXCERCISE

Our doctors are busy treating patients who are suffering from complaints, more especially malarial disorders, which will be materially benefitted if they drink a water that is pure and possesses curative features, as does Bartlett Spring Water.
